E43：Journey to the West（A Visit from Laozi 太上老君来访）下

单词数：296个　小初3500词　　DATE:

The monkey untied Bajie and Wujing. They all went outside.

"It's still early in the afternoon," said Wujing. "Let's start walking now." "Yes," said the Tang Monk. "I want to be as far from this mountain as I can by nighttime."

The travelers hurried west along the road. They hadn't gone far when an old man approached them.

"Give me back my gourd!" said the old man.

There was a flash of light. Then Laozi the sage stood before the travelers. He looked angry.

"Give me my gourd, Wukong!" boomed the sage.

Wukong laughed. "Relax, Laozi. I was just joking around. I knew it was you. Here's your gourd."

Wukong took the gourd out of his robe and handed it to the sage.

"Why did that demon have your gourd?" asked the monkey.

"Golden Horn works for me," said Laozi. "I sent him here to cause trouble for you. Buddha wanted to make sure you are all serious about
