Immortal lived. The monkey leaped into the air. The man gasped. "He's a spirit!"

Wukong was soon on the Iron Immortal's mountain. He found a cave door and knocked. "Open up!" he demanded. The door flew open, and a tall woman appeared. She held a large fan.

"Who are you?" she asked. "I am Sun Wukong. I need to borrow your fan. "Sun Wukong? Ugh!" cried the Iron Immortal. "You are my worst enemy!"

Wukong was confused. "I am? Why?" The Iron Immortal glared at the monkey. "My husband is the Bull Demon King, who used to be your friend. And our son is Red Boy. Because of you, Red Boy is a prisoner of the bodhisattva Guanyin!" Wukong laughed. "Red Boy isn't a prisoner. He is Guanyin's student. He isn't evil anymore." The Iron Immortal shrieked. "That's even worse!"
