"Aargh!" cried the demon. He covered his face and fell to the ground. Wukong pulled out his iron bar and got ready to strike. "Wukong, stop!" shouted a voice.

The monkey looked up and saw Guanyin coming down from the sky. Wukong bowed. " Greetings, Bodhisattva. I was just going to destroy this demon."

"You must not harm him," said Guanyin. " He's my pet wolf. He escaped from Heaven." The bodhisattva looked at the demon. "Return to your true form!" Light sparkled, and the demon turned into a huge wolf. Guanyin climbed onto the wolf's back.

She looked at the wolf's neck and then at Wukong. "Give me the bells, Wukong." "What bells?" Wukong held the bells behind his back. "My wolf wears a set of three bells," said Guanyin. "I know you have them. You could not have defeated the wolf without them." Wukong shrugged. "I have no idea what you're—"

"Hand them over," said Guanyin. "Or I'll recite the Tight Headband spell." "There's no need for that!" cried the monkey. "I was just joking!" Grinning sheepishly, he handed over the bells. Guanyin tied the bells around the wolf's neck and then rode up into the sky.
